THE WERLD WE HAVE NOT SEEN. EXPRACTED FROM VALLIS TALE.

THERE is a world we have not seen, That time shall never dare destroy; Where mortal footstep hath not been, Nor ear has caught its sounds of joy.

There is a region, lovelier far Than sages tell or poets sing, Beighter than summer's beauties are, And softer than the tints of spring.

There is a world, and O how blest! Fairer than prophets ever told; And never did an angel guest One had its blessedness unfold.

It is all holy and serene, The land of glory and repose;
And there, to dan the radiant scene,
The tear of sorrow never flows. ttis not fanned by summer gale,

It never needs the moon-beam pale, For there are known no evening hours. No : for this world is ever bright, With a pure radiance all itsown : The streums of uncreated light

Flow round it from the eternal throne. There, forms that mortals may not see. Too glorious for the eye to trace, And civil in peerless majesty,

Move with unutterable grace. In vain the philosophic eve May seek to view the fair abode, or find it in the curtain'd sky:—
It is, THE EWELLING-PLACE OF GOB.

THE ORPHAN.

Pause, generous stranger, pause awhile, And hear an orphan's tale; An orphan's piteous tale might make The ruddiest check turn pale.

Ah! once I did not need your ear, To listen to my wo: No cause had I to make complaint, No sorrow did I know :

But, as the lark that mounts the sky, And sings from morn till night; So did my little heart rebound With undisturb'd delight!

Oft did I with my father play, And prattle on his knee; And, at those times, I us'd to think, No child was glad like me.

But, ere I well could speak his name. I should be glad no more

My mother-Oh! 'tis long ago Since I could call her so; I have no mother!-No : she's fled From this sad world of wo!

My father's death quite broke her heart, ather's death quite ad wither'd all her joy: 'd look at me, and weep, and say-She'd look at me, and a...
"Poor little orphan boy

What, mother, is an orphan boy?

I sometimes did reply; And then she'd sob and weep so much, I feat'd lest she should die!

Full many a month she mourn'd away, Ex every soften tried;
Til quite worn out, she gently groan'd,
And sud—"Poor boy!"—and died.

Ah! how I wept upon her face ! And call'd her name in van ;— My childish heart could scarce believe she would not speak again!

And now I think of that sad day,

My grief is running o'er; I seem to see my mother die, And weep her death once more! Perhaps you bear a parent's name,

And call your child your joy; Oh! never may that child become A wretched orphan boy!

Perhaps the woes that fill my breast Are partly felt by thine;

Are dead, as well as mine Then, while I mourn my hapless lot,

O, let your pity flow! for heart that is itself distress'd, " bould feel another's wo!

BOSTON BARD.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. Ode to the Wind-Mill lately erected on the Washington Museum.

I wake the echoing strain; Worthy of my best minstrelsy-O thou dost turn my brain, Running in such a giddy round, With such a sweet, harmonious sound.

weet voiced instrument, to thee

Well do I ken some foolish prig, Welle from his slumber by thy noise, thies with a loud and angry voice, Curse on the Whirlight.

But gentle syren of the storm, Thou art to every Poet dear, Oh! may thine owner guard thy form From tempests too severe. When the north-east winds howl,

And all around is drear, How cheerfully we hear Thy much inspiring sound, And bless the artist, gentle soul, Who taught thee to whirl round.

Excuse for gazing on a beautiful Woman a. Church.

On a face of such charms, and a form of such mould. Universe graced with constant emotion.

On any next r bision was absent or cold.

Of my heart was not touched with devotion.

The constant desire, and the spirit that burn'd, Were touch'd with sweet piety's leaven, but the kinese and the thought on an angel that turn'd, is all such a direction toward heaven!

ON MORAL DUTIES. There is nothing more natural and evident than the duties which exist between man and man. They all bear the same noble impress of feature, are all alike endued with the faculties of intellect, are not materially distinguished by locality of residence, or with feelings more or less refined, according to the variety of their circumstances. Moreover, they are descended from the same parents, and consequently should regard all men as brethren. All have the same duties required, and engage individually for one and the same end.

If such be the fact, how unnatural and indecent is the discordancy of sentiment and aim which so universally distracts the world, and makes so many clefts in the fair fabric of society -Men are friendly and complacent with each other when their own private advantage does not intrude to prevent such fellowship, but let recipient of this confidence, by his interference, (perhaps through amicable views,) cause his friend the least hindrance in the attainment of his desires, and the friendly alliance is dissolved -the man calumniated and subjected to revengeful taunts, and his conduct ascribed to the worst and most interested motives.

If mankind were duly influenced by prope feelings, and could endeavour to bring about a uniformity of understanding, could coalesce in sympathy and mutual assistance, those demons Fraud and Deceit, the parents of suspicion, jealousy, and a horrid progeny of evil passion which infest the world, would be unknown and banished to their own regions of darkness .-Then man would not hate his fellow, and resort to the defamation of his character for his own profit, and fill his purse at the awful expence of a neighbour's reputation. Such things, though common, are as opposed to the common dictates of humanity, as they are sinful and detestable

Benevolence and peace, and mutual aid Between the nations, in a world that see Between the nations, in a world that seems To toll the death bell of its own decease.

It is a painful reflection that our earth can scarce y furnish a 'wildnerness' sufficiently 'vast,' or a contiguity of shade' so 'boundless,' that 'the rumour of oppression and deceit, of unsuccessful and successful war,' cannot be effectually ex-

It is easy to be seen that the happiness and pest interests of mankind would be promoted in much greater degree, if men would give up ninor considerations for the sake of amity; would yield to each other in points of no material mag aitude, and study the good of others as well as their own, and this could be effected without any great sacrifice being requirite.

then could the world in fellowship secure, The blessings of benevolence procure, And human faith its proper basis find : The true enjoyment of an honest mind

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Tediuscung the celebrated Indian chief, said it was impossible for a man to do unto others as he would be done by, unless the Great Spirit that made an, would give him a new heart, then he might do , but not else. One of the Prophets had a view o his change of heart when he mentioned, that the Lord would take away the stony one from his peopl., and would give them a heart of flesh in its place Both Indian and Prophet alluded to some thme intellectual or spiritual, and not to a corpo real change. Now let a man po-sess ever so muc religion, it is certain, that while he is not in the constant practice of doing as he would be done by, his profession is worth very little to himself or to any body else; he retains the old heart alluded to by Tediuscung, and the hard one mentioned by the Prophet, and cannot in this condition be either a righteous man or a good citizen. Some people who look on the gloomy side of things, say, that the present is a degenerate age, and that there are few besides themselves who have found out the right way. But if we look on the other side, we may see that there are very few without good qualities, very few who do not afford evidence that they have not lost all the characteristics of a good heart. That this tenderness may be cherished, and like the leaven mentioned in the Gospel, increase till the whole becomes of the same nature, appears to be quite in the catalogue A possibilities, and every good man is concerned not only to know for himself, but encourage others to press after .- A fault-finding disposition is not often the off-pring of that pure religion which shows itself in visits to the fatherless and widow in affiction, and preserves its possessor unspotted from the bad practices that abound in the world. I once knew a man who could point out delects in all his neighbours with great kill, and who passed for a man of sense, because he could so sugaciously discover imperfections of character: and though his own deficiencies did not much apnear at that time, yet it was afterwards notorious that his honesty was quite a scant pattern, and that at the same time that he was descanting so pertinently upon others failings, his own were gaining ground on him. This man had not a heart of flesh, but a heart of stone,—he probably had never petitioned for it " to be made clean, and that a right spirit might be renewed in him." Perhaps did not know himself, but while exposing others, was gratifying a malignant disposition, that swallowed up all the tender sensibil ties of his cursions of evil. The Saviour pronounces a blessing upon the pure in heart, and adds, " for they shall see God," and one of the poets says,

" From purity of heart all pleasure springs, "And from an humble spirit all our peace." LUCAS. " We led him a Wild Goose chase."

This proverb, it seems, had its origin among the sporting gentry in England, where the chase has long been a favourite amusement with the mobility and wealthy part of the community.— Many of them believe as much fondness for the sport, that wast appears are incurred in keeping up favourite horses and packs of dogs. Berwick relates, that in 1787, a park of hounds belonging to Lord Somebody, were add for 1000 guineas !-Horses for the chase are held in high estimation In training them for this purpose, many methods are used to try their speed and goodness—for-merly they practised various kinds of chase, among which the wild goose chase was a favourite among horsemen. Beringer, in his system of horsemanship, describes it as follows-" This chase is never used but in matches only, when neither hunting the hare, nor the running train scents are able to decide which horse is best .-In this case, horsemen found out this chase, which is called Wild Gasse Chase, from its resemblance to the flight of wild geese which generally follow, and keep an equal distance from each other-so in this case, after the horses have started and run twelve score yards, then which ever horse can get the leading the other is bound to follow wherever he goes, or else to be beaten up (whipped) by the judge who ride by to see fair play; and if either he twelve score yards then to match; and if the horse was behind gets before, measure which first led is bound to follow till he can get before, or else he match is lost and won. This chase still preserves its name in a common proverb, and many people follow it without knowing why they do so

POR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

The people of this commonwealth seem now to be very deep in truble. They have their quantum of anxiety on the great question of Mr. Monroe's successor, besides the whole burden of choosing for themselves a Governor. For the latter office there are but two candidates proposed; one, they say, their own choice; the other, a caucus nomination. The contest seems to be, which party shall be most successful in detracting the merits of the other's favourite, in finding ou new subjects for vilifying both the candidate and his party, and in attributing, to the worst motives, every deed he is known ever to have performed. Each act, as if the other party was headed by an insurgent of their rights, and was power and dominion. The interests of the state tself sceme to be overboked, or drawn in as a minor consideration. The contest appears to he not for the good of Penusylvania, not for a salutary change in the administration-but for Gregg and Shulze-wan not ruinciples, success not advantage. Defamation is the weapon; reason is futile and out of date with modern politicians. Democrat or Federalist is the touchstone of worth, and the good old principle of virtue liberty, and independence which safely guided our forefathers, is sadly out of favor. Such were ever the contentions of demagogue Thus unwise and misled is political feeling, trampling over right, and principle, and merit, to gain its own purposes of ambition wildly cherished, sinfully persevered in, and never successful. Men of real worth and importance keep aloof from the struggle, look down with contempt on the course of both parties, and resolving in their own minds, if they do vote, whom to favor by their suffrage, wisely determine to spurn the low, ignoble means pursued for the success-of each favourite, regarding them as dishonourable to the partizans as men, dishonest as citizens, and treacherous as patriots. We venture to predict that if this illegitimate spirit, which is so fast gaining ground, is not speedily curbed by the good sense of the public, the upshot of all this cabal will be that in a few years, if it be not at this moment actually the case, a decent man will think himself offconted by being proposed as a candidate for the gubernatorial chair of Penn-A HERMIT

GRETNA GREEN AND ANNAN. We have been favoured (says a late English publication) with the following amusing description of an Annan wedding, by a gentleman who recently accompanied a pair of billing turtles to this Scottish Altar of Hymen :- Green Green affords such bad accommodations for traveliers of that description, that it is likely to lose its once great name of tying the connubial knot; vet still I have got a doubt but it is the most expeditious way of getting married. and therefore to those who are followed by their parents, it may still on the arrival of the couple at Annan, be necessary to send for the Provest and one of the magistrates of the place, who will always come on the earliest intelligence. The ceremony that passes is as follows: To the gentleman, " Do you acknowledge this woman to be your wife?" " I do." the lady, " Do you acknowledge this man to be your husband?" The laconic answer of "I do," binds them for life, and for which they pay the sum of 7s.; but mind, this marriage, although binding, is not regular, and therefore it is necessary to send for the minister of the place; but he, I am informed, is in general awaiting in an adjoining room, in readiness to ab-desire for the blue ale Scotland is marked for. To be sure he has a slight touch of the Scotch brogue, but then it is always agreeable to the English people. Mark the style of a discourse delivered in the following way :- Tak ye'r gluive of mam-take and o'handf,' and then, with closed eyes and uplifted arms, he says, 'O Laird, let us pray, &c.;' which done, he informs you of the crime you have commit-ted, by being married by a Civil Magis-trate— Ye maby dinna ken the consequence, and that the laa of Scotland subjected them to a heavy penalty, or else ye mun be confined in the paol three months, and feed up-on bread and water;'-however, it is in his power to mitigate the penalty, which is upwards of 3/. and accordingly does, to 264.; he then gives you a certificate of marriage, which runs as follows :- ' These do certify that M of ____, and N. of ____, in the county of ____, having been this day fined by a Civil Magistrate for the irregularity of their marriage, were re-married by me, the Minister of Annan, and their marriage ordered to be registered according to law. (Signed) -, Minister, Annan, &c. 1823.

Thus concludes the ceremony at Annan; and we all must own, that it is an easy, genteel, and even (considering the circumstances) a cheap way of getting margied. No one, sure, would grumble to give 33s. for being twice married, particularly when it is to but one wife.

MASTER OF ARTS AND BACHELORS.

Master of Arts sounds odd. Master of Sciences would surely have been better; people may be disposed to ask what arts are they such great masters? for there are many; and Lucian, we know, has been at the pains to prove that none is so excellent as Parasitism. I am quite aware that liberal arts are meant, but it would have cost Lucian little trouble to have gone farther with his proofs, and to have shown that no art could well be more liberal than that of eating freely at other men's tables. To the credit of the present times I must say, Parasitism seems to be nearly at an end .-Either there are fewer wheedlers, or fewer persons capable of being wheedled out of a dinner, or more dinners to be had without Meedling. However, it is surely a great nurching at the head of the factious crew to comfort to know that the most simple, sincere, and ingenious of our young men may gradually become perfect Masters of Acts by going to either of our Universities. But if the title of Master of Arts sounds at ail strange, what shall we say to that of Ba-chelor? How odd and alarming must it appear to the ladies of the land, to see young men just growing up to man's estate labouring hard to become Bachelora; nay, "determined Bachelora," for this is another of their titles. I would give the adies comfort if I could, by explaining to them the true meaning of this singular academical term; but I am not sure that I might not make things worse, for in reality, these English Bachelors are but Latin Disputante; Baccalaurei vel Batalarii, persons who have disputed successfully in the schools. "Qui jam semel prælio battalte interfuerunt."—aut, "qui publice de arte quapiam disputassent;" what will the ladies say to this? I fear they will decide that such professed disfatants ("de arte quapium !" heavens and earth !) had better continue determined Bachelors .- Heraldie Anomalien.

> SINGULAR RECOVERY OF A FEMALE UN. JUSTLY EXECUTED

The following account of the case of a poor girl who was unjustly executed in 1706, is given by a celebrated French author, as an instance of the injustice which was often committed by the equivocal mode of trial used in France :-

" About 17 years since, a young peasant girl possessed of a very agreeable figure, was placed at Paris in the service of a man depraved by all the vices consequent on the corruption of great cities. Smitten with her charms, he tried every method to seduce her; but she was virtuous, and resisted. The prudence of this girl only icritated the passions of her master, who, not being able to make her submit to his disires, determined on the most black and horrible revenge. He secretly conveyed into her box many things belonging to am, marked with his name. He then exclaimed that he was robbed, called in a commissaire (a ministerial officer of justice) and made his deposition. The unhappy servant was imprisoned -She defended herselfanly by her tears; she had no evidence to prove that she did not put the property in her box; and her only answer to the interrogatories was that she was innocent. The Judges had no suspicion of the depravity of the accuser, whose station was respectable, and they administered the law in all its rigor; a rigor undoubtedly excessive, which ought to give place to a simple but certain penalty which should leave few crimes unpunished. The innocent girl was condemned to be hanged. The dreadful office was ineffectually performed, as it was the first attempt of the son of the great executioner A surgeon had purchased the body for dissection, and it was conveyed to his house. On that evening, being about to open the head, he perceived solve you from this sin, which he takes a gentle warmth about the body. The dissecting care to tell you, you have committed.—It must be necessary to give you a short de- her whom he was about to dissect. His efforts to scription of him. He is a neat made mid- restore her to life were effectual; and at the same dle aged old gentleman, with a good deal time he sent for a priest, on whose discretion and of religion stamped on his countenance, experience he could depend in order to consult short but regular intervals upon the listening was it not rather defaced by a too great with him on this strange event, as well as to have the unfortunate girl opened her eyes, she believed herself in the other world, and perceiving the figure of the priest, who had a marked and a majestic countenance (for I know him, and it is from him I have this fact,) she joined her hands tremblingly, and exclaimed 'Eternal Parasa, you know my innocence ; have pity on me !' In this manner she continued to invoke the Ecclesiastic, believing, in her simplicity, that she beheld her God .- They were long in persuading her that she was not dead-so much had the idea of the punishment and of death possessed herimagination. Nothing could be more touching and more expressive than the cry of an innocent being, who thus approached towards him whom she regarded as her Bupreme Judge; and, independently of her affecting beauty, this single spectacle was sufficient to create the most lively interest in the breast of an observing and sensible man. What a scene for a painter! What a moral for a philosopher! What a lesson for a legislator !

"The process was not submitted to a new rerision, as was stated in the Journal de Paris, The servant having returned to life, recognized a man in him whom she had adored, and who directed her prayers towards the only advrable Being. quitted the house of the surgeon, who was doubly unquiet on her account and his own. She retired to hide herself in a distant sillage, fearing to meet the Judges or the Officers, who with the dreadful tree, incessantly haunted her imagination. The villainous accuser remained unpunished, because his crime, though manifested to the eves of two individual witnesses, was not so clear to the eves of the Magistrates and of the laws. The people subsequently became acquainted with the resurrection of this girl, and loaded with reproaches the execrable author of her misery, but, in this immense city, his offence was soon forgotten, and the monster perhaps still breathes; at least, he has not publickly suffered the punishment which he deserves.

> FOR THE SATURDAY EVANING POST. ADVENTURES OF AN EVENING. CONCLUDED

Once more in the street I turned my steps pretty hastily toward home, as it was late and the air chilly and damp. I was now on the corners of _____ and ____ streets, deeply musing on the days that were flown, the joys I had felt with dear friends who were now far from me, but whose forms are ever near and flittering like heavenly messengers along the beingth and clear. heavenly messengers along the bright and cless expanse of remembrance, for it was

'the hour when memory wakes
'Visions of joy that could not list;
'This is the losar when lancy takes

*And many a pleasure gone! · Friendships that now in death are bush'd,

And young . 'fection's broken chain *And hope mean tate too quickly crush'd,
 'In memory bloom again!'

Like ministers of peace and pleasing sorrow they glide along that stream, whose waters refreshing to the soul, seem to the "minds eye" flowing through a far space of time, amid a lengthened through a far space of time, amid a lengthened walky, shaded with many a metancholy bough of endearing hue, whose retiring foliage, brightly tinted by the beams of one bright and tovely star, is waving and sighing to the mournful breeze; and just as a tear was starting to consecrate this pure tribute to the remembrance of an hallowed and imperishable affection, a sudden movement near me attention of most from the seed served. ne aroused my mind from its sad reverie.

I looked and beheld an aged man apparently staggering with weakness, and expressing himself in a kind of soliloquy. Surprised at beholding a man of his age and respectable appearance in such a situation, exposed to the influence of the night soon ascertained that his strangeness proceeded from a too five use of the bottle. He said he loved a drop once in a while, and sometimes to ik, as he expressed himself, a drop too much; and that this was the case with him now. He fell to moralising on his condition, and the fool-ishness he was guilty of at his twe of hie, and with apparent contention bewailed his misfortune, at the same time cautioning me against so exist example, and then would again talk of his laving a drop once in a while, and of his sometimes gering a drop too much, and, forgetting his formet hamonation and warning, began in a right merry mood, to descant upon the exalted qualities of good logious, and what a fine merry old has he had been inquor, and what a fine merry old buy he had been in his time. And, then, as if suddenly recoilecting himself, chieded his weakness, and began to talk with seeming seriousness of life and death, and of a future state; of his going to heaven, and said be hoped to see me there, &c. &c. On enquiring his residence, he was completely lost and bewildered. Lake Cassio, "hir rememberlost and bewiders d. Lake Cassio, "he remembered a mass of things, but nothing distinctly," and seemed ready to exclaim "alas" that men should put an enemy in their mouths to steal away to brains. I however succeeded in ascertaining that he lived in — street, near — street, and though within a few squares of his house, and on ground that he had trod a "thousand times and off," he appeared as a stranger, and even expressed his fears that I was leading him astray. I however succeeded in entiring him along. On arever succeeded in enticing him along. On ar-ever succeeded in enticing him along. On ar-riving at his home, and presenting the aged pro-digal to the bosom of his family, the scene that ensued was to one full of interest. They had been anxiously waiting, and had sent out messengers in search of him, and were now indeed happy in having him restored to them; although that happarties was but too evidently mingled with shame and sorrow. I received many thanks for my little services, and he himself seemed particularly angions to commend me to the attention of his family, and on taking my leave, expressed his desire that we should become better acquainted. He aso peared now gradually returning to resume that ancient seat from which folly and weakness had driven her. I hid them tarewish, with the unexpression of the country of the c ed hope, that such lamentable effects of "second childishness" might never again be exhibited.

Again at liberty, I once more directed my way home, in silence and solitude, which at this hour was only interrupted by the falling of my own footsteps; and they arose from the payement in e harmony.

The moon was beaming silver light,

*The eye no cloud could view," and at that instant the soft, clear, and melodious strains of music from a serenating party tame sweetly stealing through the air, in one unbroken, full, and meliow flood. Mi feeings have always been highly susceptible to the fulless made always been highly succeptible to the full succepti ceptible to the thilling magic of sweet sounds,— but at mgl/t, who is there that does not leel its bewitching influence, and love to listen, and be-liest in sweet amezement. When the thousand lost in sweet amezement. When the thousand sensitions of peace, heatthiness and gladness, with every teeling in life that can charm the mind and mult the heart to pity, tenderness, live and bits, like peacing rills, mingle and unite, or rather seem entirely lest minne sich melodious flood of onfi and unspeakable rapture. In me it produces feelings almost unearthly, god when over all is thrown the dark finds of sectory, giving its shade of pensive pleasure from the remembrance of other hanner days. I cannot but feel, as it were, other tappier days. I cannot but feel, as it were transported to some bright and heavenly region and listening to the voices of an immortal choir And I could not but felicitate myself on the highly agreeable termination which this last incident had given to the advectures of an evening.

PROW THE NEW YORK STATISMAN.

AMERICAN POETRY.

A small volume of sixty or seventy pages has just been issued from the press of Mr. Ming of this city, entitled at Late Forms be the Boston But." The collection consists entirely of fugithe press, many of which originally appeared in the Statesman. Others we believe have never been published. Neither the appearance of the incen published. Nother the appearance of the volume, nor the typographical execution of it is very innowing or attractive. The paper is not of the first quality, hot-pressed; the text does not meander like a rill through a wide and best-ridd margin; and the volume is not elegantly hound and lettered. But the reader will find in the collection many specimens of genuine poetry.

Mr. Collin (for we suppose the author will have no objection to his real name being mentioned,) is one of the most unfortunate among the sons of is one of the most infortunate among the sons of song. He is the son of a respectable clergyman of Maire. The place of his nativity has been commemorated in stances on the "Destruction of Howdon College" by fire, about a year since;

" Where Andrescoggin's waters flow, Far Broaswick's shores along, there the tall pines majestic gre First lisp'd the child of song."

Possessing but too barge a share of those et centraties and irregularities, which genus is often heir too, Mr. Coffin's career in life has batheria laser eviatic and full of adventures; but grat from to find by one of his pieces in the at enflection, entitled "At Thirty Wis-ever," that he has been holding screens musion with his muse, and projecting plans

> FOR THE SATURLAY EVENING POST. Mears. Lillers,-

I observe it stated in your paper of last week, " that Dr. P-, of Frankford, by virtue of the Fever and Ague Powders, brought a child to life, which had all the appearance of being dead three hours." This is not a fact. The child, to which I presume the above alludes, was but one day old when it was attacked with the same complaint with which its mother was afflicted, viz. Intermittent Fever, to which was superadded, convulsions and jaundice.

Together with other remedies it took a small dose of calomel, which had the expected effect, of preparing the system for other remedies more particularly applicable to the prevention of the return of the chill, &c. However, for want of ime, the chill, convulsions and fever the next day returned. The morning after, I was told by the attendants, that the child was dying, and that it had been three hours without breathing. In fact it had many of the symptoms of approaching dissolution-but which arose rather from exhaustion than any present disease. The nurse was persuaded to give it a weak solution of the Sulphate f Quinine (not the " Fever and Ague Powder,") which has had so good an effect, as to speeddy restore the child, as it did its mother, to health. I should not have noticed the above had it no been for the favourable opportunity it afforded, for usging upon Physicians generally, the propriety of giving the Sulphate of Quinine a trial in the present epidemic, which afflicts the country so generally. Thave tried it in very many cases, and have found it both safe and efficacious in all those in which it would have been otherwise proper to have given the back. To infants and to aged per sons, particularly, to whom it would have been impossible to give the bark in quantities sufficient, the Sulphate of Quinine, is a remedy invaluable I am fully persuaded that many are now in health, who would have been in their graves had at not been for the above mentioned remedy.

REPULSE OF THE FRENCH BEFORE CO-HUNNA.

London dates to the 29th of July, brought by a recent arrival at Boston, confirm the intelligence receited at New York, of the complete discomfiture of the French in an attack made on Corunna.

Accounts received at Lloyd's from Corunna, dated the 18th July, state, that " up attempts of the French d been repulsed, with and their advanced troops to that per-upon Cou-considerab were retreat

The English papers hail the bold and uccessful resistance of Sig Robert Wilson at Corunna, as an auspicious omen of Spain, to use the words of Mr. Canning, coming triumphant out of the contest.'

A letter from Liverpool, states, that Corunna was well fortified, and furnished with provisions for six months; that the garison consisted of 6000 men, and the French army only four thousand five hundred, and finally, that Robert Wilson, was determined not to surrender the town as long as there should be a house standing.

A letter from Bordeaux, says, the 20th egiment of light infantry, has lately manifested some symptoms of insubordina-tion, insomuch that it had been decided not to allow it to go forward from Bayonne ; but Marshal Lauriston, in an address to the soldiers, told them, that by special favor, the measure of severity would not be persisted in, but it was expected that the regiment would entertain a proper sense of the indulgence. However, it seems that on the night of Monday last, 56 of them deserted, declaring that they had rather be condemned to be shot, than make a campaign in Spain.
It is stated that two hundred eart loads of the French wounded had arrived at a small village near Cotunna. Sir Robert Wilson was wounded a little above the knee, and it was supposed he would lose his leg. Another account wound was slight The Spania ds to the number of 8 or 9000 men, made a sortie from Cadiz on the morning of the 16th, but were repulsed, according to the French account, with the loss of 1500 men killed and wounded.

A vessel from Corunna, for England, having on board the sife of Gen. Quiroga and a member of the Spanish Cortes, was carried into L'Orient on the 22d July, by a French cruizer.

Letters from Rome of the 12th July tates that the Pope was recovering from is wounds.

> Cork, (Ireland) July 18 .- Andrew Sullivan, Dennis Sheehan, Patrick Hennessey, Sen. Patrick Hennessey, Jun. Jeremiah Flynn, John Finn, Thomas Leaby, David Magner, and Edward Murphy, have been found guilty of setting fire to the house and mills of Charles Hennessey, and ordered for execution.

There is at present a fellow in London who is in the habit of calling on persons with birds of a very beautiful appearance, which he says he has brought from Savannah, but which in reality are nothing but parrows dyed various colors.

Two persons, Lt. Col. Hull, and Mr. Fox, have arrived in London, by an overland route from India. They travelled through Egypt, theace to Malta, and Sicily, and through Italy, Switzerland, and France. The journey occupied nearly nine months.

A number of boats and canoes were latediscovered at the bottom of Lake Doon, and several of them have been raised; they are from 16 to 22 feet long, cut out of solid oak, and are supposed to have been in the water 800 or 900 years. About the middle of last July, at Malinbridge, near Sheffield, a hive of bees swarm- the Americans were buying up cotton

It is mentioned as a fact in a late Engfant at her breast, employed on the grounds podding peas, previous to the commencement of her daily labors, suckled the child, and left it in a hedge near the place where she was at work; on her return some time after to look for her child, she was struck with horror at finding it dead. With the wretched mother's consent the child was opened by a surgeon, and a snake found in its stomach. It is supposed that soon after the mother had suckled the infant, the snake attracted by the milk remaining on the child's lips, had entered the mouth and suffocated it.

FROM GIBRALTAR.

The ship Potosi, Captain Griffiths, has arrived at N. York from Gibraltar, whence she sailed on the first of August. Captain G. brings information that the Congress frigate, Capt. Biddle, returned to that port on the 25th July, with Mr. Nelson, our Minister to Spain, having been forbidden to enter the port of Cadiz by the French blockading squadron. The Tribune British frigate, with Sir Wm. A'Court, the British Minister to the Court of Spain, arrived at Gibraltar on the 25th July. One account says this frigate was ordered off from Cadiz.

CONSPIRACY IN HAVANA. Extract of a letter received by the sehr. Sarah Aon, arrived at Baltimore. HAVANA, August 19.

" There has been a most diabolical conpiracy discovered here, the ringleaders which were taken yesterday; the intention was to upset the present government, to accomplish which, the negroes and muttoes were to act their part, and horrid to Late, the Negroes were to commence on aturday night last, in a GENERAL MASSACRE of their masters. These neroes were to be known by having a black and in their bosoms. One of the conpirators became alarmed about two hours efore the fatal blow was to be struck, and requested to see the Governor who was in bed; after being examined, and no arms found about his person, he was admitted into the governor's room, where he disclosif the intended affair, stating that the governor had but two hours to save the city from being crimsoned with the blood of s citizens. The Military were immedily ordered out and divided throughout city, the conspirators became alarmed. nd nothing was done. Yesterday a man by the name of Lamos, who was to be made Governor, was taken up and put in the Moro, as also a Priest who was to be Bishop and two others, the one to be Intenfant, the other to be General of marines. These people are considered the ringleaders, and will, no doubt, be put to deathsland, no European having been entrusted with the design.

Martial law is in full force; however, at present tranquility prevails; 200 persons have been arrested and are now in confinement.

On the evening of the 31st ult. a plo was laid by a gang of desperadoes, to carry ing in the harbor of Havana. The conmcy was discovered by the Captain and Consignee, and, on application to the General of Marines, a guard of soldiers was placed on board. During the night boats were observed to approach the vessel, but it was supposed that they discovered the guard and made off. Havana was very sickly.

Evening Post.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday, September 13, 1823.

The Editor of the New York Commercial Ad nces the publication of a beautiful dition of the principal poems of Dr. Percival from the press of Mr. Wiley, of that city.

It affords us the highest gratification in no ticing this, because from the well known talents of the author, we can venture to promise our selves and the public a treat of no ordinary kind Without exception, in our estimation, Percival, as a poet, stands among the foremost of this, or any other country-His writings exhibit a depth and tenderness of feeling, lucidness of though simplicity and elegance of expression, that rarely excelled, and cannot, we think, fail of in teresting the most cold and indifferent.

His new volume consists of original pieces, the first of which, a pnem of about 1000 lines, entitled the " Shipwreck," is spoken of, as possessing ex cellence, that will in no wise derogate from his high and well carned reputation as a poet, and we really hope this exertion to gratify the admirers of real genius, will meet with such remuneration as will prove it to be duly appreciated.

There is but little variation as yet in the health of the sickly parts of our liberties; if any, it is rather for the better. The weather is becoming cooler, and we are in hopes it may have a salutary and speedy effect on the prevailing dis-

The inhabitants of some parts of New-Jer sey, we regret to say, have much sickness in their families the present season. They would do well to avoid as much as possible, the deleterious effects of the night air-a sound constitution is too valuable a blessing to be trifled with. We notice in the Woodbury Herald an unusual number of deaths which occurred in that neighbourhood during the last week.

We have been requested to insert the subjoined proceedings in the Senate of this state, during its session of last winter, accompanied with the names of those members voting for and against the principles in question. As some of our readers may, perhaps, not be in possession of those important facts, we believe their publication, if not attended with any good, cannot certainly be productive of evil consequences. "To be exposed to the insults and exactions of military officers, constables and collectors of military finesand be debarred from pursuing a summary mode of redress provided by due course of law-to have the public treasury of the state made use of as a fund to encourage these officers to oppress and harrass the peaceable citizen—to have one's property exposed to seizure and person to imprisonment without one moment's notice-may suit the condition of slaves under a military despotism-but off the schr. Scott, of Philadelphia, then can never be adapted to the character of the citizens of a free republic." Leaving our readers to draw their own inferences of the atarming tendency, in these "piping times of peace," of this open violation of the constitution, and direct and palpable infringement of the dearest rights and privileges we are permitted to enjoy, as a free and enlightened people, we offer them to their perusal, simply premising that the senators who advocated this tyrannical Act, by forfeiting their oaths to support the constitution disfranchised themselves from holding offices of trust, and are unworthy of the confidence of their fellow citi-

> An ACT to further restrain Aldermen and Justices of the Peace, from taking cognizance of suits against Militia officers.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is here by enacted by the authority of the same, that if after the passage of this act any alderman or jus-tice of the peace in the commonwealth shall issue process, or in any manner whatever commence, take cognizance of any suit or action against : militia officer, constable, collector, or other person concerned in the execution of the militia laws of the commonwealth for any thing done by them, or any or either of them, under, or in pur-suance of said militia laws, every alderman or jusace at Laguira and Carracas, and were tice of the peace so offending, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and all his acts and proceedings are hereby declared to be absolutely null and void."

The bill was read a third time; and on the question, shall the bill pass? The year and nays issued for the collection of fines, agreeably to the 26th, 28th and 38th sections of the act to which this is a supplement, immediately after the words, 'returning the overplus, if any, to the owner,' the following words is hereby authorized to be added, to wit: 'and for want of sufficient goods and chattels, to pay the same, you are hereby required to convey the delinquent to the jail of the proper county, and deliver him to the custody of the satesiffer jailor thereof to be held and detained by him with the tower the sate five or force of the court by them. until he pays the said fine or fines, or is discharged agreeably to the insolvent lives of this commonwealth, and which warrants shall then conclude in the form prescribed by the said sections."

The unquestionable character of this act, is the rendering the MILITARY superior to the Civil authority, and totally independent thereof. Yet the Constitution, that guarantee of our liberties, expressly declares, " The military shall, in all cases and at all times be in strict subordination to the civil power"-and again, " Every man, for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of

We last week published an account of the execution of Mr. Hamilton of Kentucky, as the murderer of Dr. Sanderson, of which act it appeared from the confession of a man lately executed in Alabama, he was innocent.

That testimony, thus given, small highly improbable, and that it should excite a highly improbable in the highly improbable i feeling of the deepest sorrow for the fate of the unfortunate youth, and of commiscration for the anguish of his surviving relatives is indeed evident, and we should suppose there are few minds but would freely and anxiously allow the poor compensation for the loss of life and character under circumstances so distressing. Yet the Winchester (Va.) Republican upon 'good authority' contradicts this statement, and avers that flamilton was the real murderer. What are the motives of this contradiction or the good authority on which it is founded the editor has not condescended to explain -until we have better grounds, therefore, for placing faith in this ' good authority,' or for disbeheving the evidence of a dying man, which by-the-bye we should suppose sufficient authority, we shall still consider the conviction of Hamilton as an impressive warning to Junous in cases resting on circumstancial evi-dence, where there is any doubt remaining, that the prisoner should be deemed innocent.

James Parr, of Duke-street, Liverpool, aged 19 committed suicide in this city, on Wednesday aftermon; he exhibited evidence of partial derangement, though the following note, written shortly before the unfortunate transaction, and given by him to the person with whom he board ed, shows a tolcrable sane state of mind.

Philadelphia. DEAR MOTHER,-I do not think you know where I am; I was put on board the Neptune Capt. Bich, by my usele; but before that, I was put into the Lamuic Asylum; my uncle threaten-ed me, I should stop there all my life, if I did not immediately consent to go to America; I did go —Farewell.

JAMES PARR.

- Farewell.

'Tis sad to think that now I die,
You cannot press my languid head;
Nor can I on your bosom lie,
Till every breath of life be fletl.
To Ales. Parr, No. 30, Duke arreet, Liverpool.

We observe by the Common al Advertiser of yesterday, that a case of yesterday, that a case of yesterday. in New-York, in the person of a Mrs. Lord, who had resided two weeks preceding her attack, on board the ship Diane, arrived at the quarantine on the 24th July, from Havanna, of which vessel her husband is mate. A note from her physicians to the mayor of the city, on the subject of her removal says: " as she is in an airy apartment, and particular attention paid to cleanliness, we do not conceive that the neighbourhood will be endanger ed by allowing her to remain where she now is, provided that no more intercourse is had with the patient, than the proper conduct of her treatment shall require."

The attractions of the Circus, this season, have been greatly augmented by the addition which the drama has received in the distinguished talents and originality of Mr. Cowell, Comedian. -This gentleman has always been held in the highest repute in New-York, and from the disposition which he has evinced since his arrival here, in the management of the stage performances at the Circus, we are confident he will receive the strongest and most unequivocal marks of the approbation of the public, and be liberally enconraged in his persevering attentions to afford them satisfaction and amusement.

The old Columbian Line will leave the upp side of Market street every Sunday, at 7 A. M. and arrive in New York, by the Steam Boat Wilham Penn, the same afternoon.

There is now growing in a garden near Lewistown, Delaware, a Radish which measures 274 inches in circumference, and the body of it extends 17 inches above the
